

Additional Operation of the System

In reply to the further inquiries of FirstNet, BAE Systems Land & Armaments L.P. (“BAE Systems”) understands that after operation of the system under the requested STA at BAE Systems’ location and delivery of the system to the military, further operation of the system is expected to be conducted in the near term by the military at the Naval Air Weapons Station China Lake for developmental test and evaluation purposes. Of course, BAE Systems has no direct control over such plans, and is not privy to any additional information regarding future testing locations by the military either for evaluation or for training purposes.
