Cisco Systems.

Update to Cisco mobile FCC experimental license. This license is used for product development, OTA testing and product demonstrations in Cisco test labs and business center at the various campus listed.

All operations confined to indoor use only under this license. Most testing is done via cable to cable connection or in one of our shielded or semi anechoic test chambers as to avoid disrupting service provider operation.

If Ota testing of low power systems is done outside chamber, Cisco works with local holder of mobile licenses

Note: If possible Cisco would also like this considered a request for renewal
