Question #7

The request for a new experimental license is an extension of the current Special Temporary Authority (“STA”) (1408-EX-STA-2017) granted by the Commission to FCL Tech on October 4, 2017. The current STA is set to expire on April 2, 2018. The experiment is designed to validate a rural-focused, end-to-end LTE stack. The purpose is to gain operational experience in installing, setting up, and monitoring an LTE network and is confined to internal testing. It will contribute to the development, extension, expansion, and utilization of the radio art by facilitating the validation and development of LTE network services for underserved communities. A regular license is being sought rather than a renewal of the existing STA because it is now contemplated that the continued testing could require up to an additional year. None of the technical parameters for the experiment are changing.
