

General Dynamics has been contracted to develop a classified system for the US Army. This development will require low power (10mW EIRP) over the air testing (OTA) as a proof of concept for future newly designed antenna's and RF receivers. This preliminary OTA testing will be conducted using commercially available antennas and signal generators. The testing will be conducted on the General Dynamics Mission Systems (GDMS) Scottsdale, Arizona campus.