Hi Travis,

We will only transmit full power at 90 degrees. This operation is only used to test the reflected power impact back at our antenna for spurious emissions.

We have run this test before at our facility but our license expired. In the past we have contacted the companies mentioned in previous correspondences that are within approximately a 50 mile radius.

Is there another way we can get this license without having to contact every carrier within a 199 km radius? We're not aware of all those who are in the area.

Thanks for your help.
