To whom it may concern,

Trimble Navigation is a manufacturer of Inmarsat-C user equipment and wishes to commission six of our Inmarsat-C units for demonstration purposes. These Inmarsat-C units will be operated by Trimble Navigation personnel for demonstration purposes outside of the United States of America at this time. I understand that it is the responsibility of Trimble Navigation to obtain permission to operate these units from the PTT of the host country where the terminal will be used.

Some of these units are expected to return to the USA for demonstration purposes about the end of June, 1997. I understand that we must apply for an FCC license to operate these units within the domestic USA.

Best regards,
