

Exhibit No. 2

- (a) The Air Force Research Laboratory contracted Textron Systems in developing a high-resolution active imaging system. The data and software are considered sensitive.
- (b) The real-time camera images must be transmitted to the target site where the test director and staff evaluate data and coordinate test plan to airborne crew and ground personnel.
- (c) This is a portable facility to go where no other facilities exist.