

Applicant is a College or University with a graduate research program in engineering that is accredited by the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology. The Advanced Radar Research Center at the University of Oklahoma is an interdisciplinary group of faculty, staff, and students that conducts radar-related education and research.