

The purpose of the radio operation is to develop and test new radio hardware, networking and modulation schemes for short range mobile and indoor radio systems. Software Defined Radio and Cognitive Radio techniques will be employed and tested. Antenna and propagation testing will also be conducted for short range mobile and indoor radio communications.

This experimental program is to support sponsored research and student projects.