

Response to Form 442 Question 15

AirCell typically owns the proprietary base station antennas and unique configuration equipment. AirCell leases the transmitters and tower space from its existing cellular partners, which already provide service (i.e., minutes of use) to AirCell pursuant to both the 1998 AirCell waiver order and individual waiver orders granted to each cellular carrier participating in the AirCell system. AirCell controls, but does not own, the mobile units used on its system.