

02/23/2016

American Innovations requires the use of GPS retransmission to facilitate characterization and testing of a variety of GPS receivers. This characterization and testing is in the interest of determining which features/performance metrics are optimum for the products we are developing and the applications we are serving.