

Exhibit No. 1

The equipment is not to be used for any research or experimentation program, but is to provide a back-up telecommunication system in emergency situations, where normal telephone services are not available, primarily to overseas locations.

The system is also to be used during emergency drills and for training for emergency situations, to communicate with overseas locations.