The map covers an area in which the University of Utah and its partners anticipate to deploy equipment as part of the NSF PAWR program. The area indicated on the map is partly owned by the University of Utah, and the remainder is under the jurisdiction of our Salt Lake City project partner. The equipment to be deployed will be under control of the Flux Research Group at the University of Utah, who will be managing the platform. The equipment to be deployed will have local RF monitoring capabilities and will be remotely monitored and controlled across the whole deployment.
