

Description of Experiment:

Paratek Microwave Inc is developing an electronically scanning multi-beam antenna for commercial mobile wireless markets. The experimental license is needed to prove out the antenna performance using low-level signals at the frequency bands used outside of US. The experiment will consist of transmitting carrier waves with no information towards the antenna and proving the antenna performance. At present no specific customers have been identified.