

Description of Experiment

Purpose of this experiment is to test the propagation effects of various mm-Wave frequencies. Equipment will be located at various test sites around the continental US and operated in a portable mode. Once the site is selected the link will propagate point to point using directional antenna.