Laurie,

We have evaluated your request to renew our concurrence with Rockwell-Collins to perform over-the-air testing over the SITA operational VHF network and we agree with your request. We are therefore extending the expiry date until December 31, 2018 provided that there no major changes to the avionics configuration used during the testing. By major changes we consider using equipment such as CMUs or VDRs that have never been tested at the VAQ facility. Modifications to equipment that has passed through the VAQ testing under a different revision would not be considered as a major change in this context.

The reference for this waiver remains RC-VAQ/068.

Best regards,

Zbig Jasiukajc

Hello Zbig,

I hope this email finds you well.

Rockwell Collins is seeking a renewal of the concurrence granted from SITA in 2014. Rockwell Collins has submitted an application for renewal of its experimental license (call sign WH2XNM) to the FCC OET to continue developmental testing of VHF Datalink radio equipment. We would like to continue that testing; and there have been no changes to the configuration information since Rockwell Collins filed its initial SITA concurrence request granted by SITA in 2014.

Please find the formal request attached along with the 2014 concurrence request and grant.

Thank you,

Laurie
