Question: Who is the responsible party for the license Camber or Texas A&M?

Answer: Camber is the Lead Systems Integrator (LSI) for the Lone Star UAS Center of Excellence and Innovation (LSUASC). The LSUASC is one of the six FAA Test Sites. This center is directed by Texas A&M University - Corpus Christi (TAMUCC). The responsible party for the submission will be TAMUCC based on the dynamic explained above.

FYI: I, Mathew Nelson, am the Range Operations Manager for the LSUASC and am responsible for all operations on the test site. Spectrum Management falls into my responsibilities, which is why the request was submitted by me. My contact information is:

Office: 256-922-3724, Mobile: 256-698-0192, Email: mnelson@camber.com

Thank You,

Mathew Nelson
