Equipment Application:

The Western Disaster Center will utilize this equipment to provide transportable telephone and Internet connectivity related to the disaster management mission. These applications will include but will not be limited to Internet connectivity and telephone support for search and rescue activities and remote Internet connectivity for the Western Disaster Information Network.

The Western Disaster Center (WDC) is a not-for-profit research center that has been established to provide for increased public safety by improving disaster and emergency management capabilities. This is accomplished through research and the application of advanced computer, information and communication technologies and the development and application of methods for public/private partnering. This process is managed and directed by the Western Disaster Center, Inc., a California, public benefit, 501(c)(3) nonprofit corporation.
