

The equipment is part of the SuperDARN radar network and is used for research on the upper atmosphere. SuperDARN work at University of Alaska Fairbanks is supported under a variety of grants from government agencies including National Science Foundation Grant ARC-0520546, which is the most relevant to this application.