A small, green, rectangular electronic component, likely a microcontroller or sensor module, is shown next to a ruler for scale. The component has a gold-colored connector on one side and various surface markings, including '10', '20', '30', '40', '50', '60', '70', '80', '90', and '100'. The ruler is marked in centimeters, with the component positioned between the 40 cm and 50 cm marks. The background is a blue textured surface.

A photograph of a small, green, square electronic component, likely a microcontroller or sensor, placed on a blue textured surface. The component has a central yellow circular feature and several small rectangular components. A ruler is visible on the left side of the image, showing measurements in centimeters.
