Installing Your Motion Sensor

1. Determine the best location for your sensor. See the next page for tips.

2. Fasten the screw into the wall.

3. Hang the magnetic wall mount on the screw, following the diagram below.

4. Attach the motion sensor to the mount. It will snap on magnetically.

5. Position the angle of your sensor.

Positioning Tips

When positioning your motion sensor, here are several tips to keep in mind:

• Sensors have viewing angles of 170° horizontally and 97° vertically. They can detect motion from up to 20 feet away (7 meters).

• The sensor works by monitoring changes in infrared energy. Avoid pointing sensors directly at lights or mounting your sensor next to vents, radiators, or other heat sources.

• Try to position your sensor so that an intruder would have to walk past it when entering rather than walking directly toward it.

• If you have large pets, you may have to experiment in order to avoid false alarms. Point sensors away from stairs and other high places where pets may go.
