

On the external photos provided it is understandable to think that the label is located on a detachable device but it is not. On the last photo below is displayed a new view. As you can see the device is composed of a front case, a back case, and a sealing gasket. The label is directly on the back case, the user cannot detach it.

