

The label is positioned under the battery.
The battery is not connected when the handset is put on the market.

