Tim,
I have reviewed our design and have decided to do away with the announcement frames completely.   All other specifications stay the same.   Out of the 56 channels availible only 52 will be used in any hop set.   The attached Operational Description has the   the announcement frames removed.   I don't see any reference to the announcement frames in the report or any other documents so the Operational Description should be all you need. Please let me know if you find something I missed. I will get it to you immediately.

To my understanding Tom Tidwell is travailing today.   Please let me know if there is anything else you need.

Operational Description_Rev.pdf