TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

With this letter, we, ClearOne Communications, confirm that the RAV 600/RAV 900 are very similar to the Converge 560/Converge 590. Below are the differences between the products:

- The primary difference from the RAV system to the Converge system is the microphone module. The RAV microphone module has 3 built in microphones, while the Converge microphone module interfaces to 3 third party microphones via XLR connectors.
- The main mixer unit has different internal software to handle third party microphones.
- The main mixer unit has different silk-screening on the front panel.
- The main mixer has a different label indicating a different name and part number
- The main mixer PCB is the same in all four versions (RAV 900, RAV 600, Converge 590, Converge 560).
- The RAV 600 and Converge 560 are versions of the RAV 900 and Converge 590 with components removed from the main mixer PCB (less 3 DSPs).
- The Telco and RF circuits are identical in all four versions.
- The Controller unit is identical for all four versions.

Sincerely,
