Questions and responses follow:

1. It appears that a simultaneous CDMA/BT SAR test was performed. Please note that all applications containing simultaneous SAR tests must now be submitted directly to the FCC for review. The requirement for stand-alone BT SAR was not addressed. Please revise the SAR report in accordance with current FCC requirements.

Response: Please refer to the revised SAR report Exhibit 11 attached.

2. Page 3/42 of the SAR report lists the BT output power as 20 dBm, while the BT report lists the measured output as 1.429 dBm. Please clarify.

Response: Please refer to the revised SAR report Exhibit 11 attached.

3. On p.11/26 of the BT test report the plots are missing. Please revise.

Response: There are no plots missing on page 11 in the BT report. The statement refers to the below pages meaning the following pages. It does mean that any plots should be expected on page 11. All plots are in the test report.

4. In the Bluetooth radiated emission test report, the noise floor on a number of plots (in the vicinity of 18 GHz, a restricted band) is higher than the average limit. How was compliance determined in these areas?

Response: Please refer to the BT Radiated Response attached.

5. Please submit an Operational Description of the Bluetooth transmitter.

Response: Please refer to the revised Operational Description Exhibit 12 attached.

6. Please submit the 1900 MHz Frequency Stability data (the 835 MHz Frequency Stability data was submitted twice).

Response: Please refer to the EMC Supplement Response attached.
