Hi, Mike,

1. Please see attached cover letter on professional installation. The Users Manual had been revised and is attached here;
2. FCC ID was corrected on page 25 in the attached manual;
3. The RF exposure warning statement was added on page 25 of the revised manual.

Thank you very much,

Anne

Question #1: This equipment is equipped with N type connector which is not the unique connector per the requirement stated in section 15.203 of FCC rules. Based upon the description of user manual, this equipment may require professional installation. However, in the user manual there is no where mentioned professional installation is required. If this device is required to have professional installation, please provide a cover letter to justify professional installation requirement and modify the user manual to include such requirements.

Question #2: The FCC ID number listed on the page 25 of user manual does not match with proposed FCC ID number. Please explain.

Question #3: The RF exposure warning statement listed in the page 25 of user manual does not including the following restriction. Please add the following statement and provide revised user manual.

" This antenna(s) used for this transmitter must not be co-located or operating in conjunction with any other antenna or transmitter."

Best Regards

Mike Kuo
