Subject: RE: Labelling of devices installed in vehicles

Question:

Is it acceptable for automated systems that are installed internally to vehicles, not visible to the end user, to place the compliance statement in the vehicle's user manual and not on the device itself?

Answer:

Yes, the compliance statements can be placed within the User's Manual. However, some reference (such as models numbers) must be incorporated to ensure that the proper compliance statement/User's Manual is used for the installed device.
