3. The above documents are classified by Spotwave Wireless as company confidential data and are not in the public domain, nor are they made available to customers. They are for internal use only.
4. The above documents are stored in a secure development laboratory with restricted access. Only employees, sub-contractors and consultants who have signed a formal non-disclosure agreement with Spotwave Wireless are allowed access to these documents, and then only on a need-to-know basis.
5. Spotwave Wireless maintains these documents at a company confidential classification because they contain the detailed information on the implementation of the company's Intellectual Property. Specifically design information relating to custom components that is otherwise unavailable could be obtained using this data. The dissemination of this data would therefore severely damage the company's competitive advantage in the Wireless market.
6. This market is a competitive one, with many other companies offering coverage enhancement products that do not currently embody characteristics or features that are enabled by the Spotwave Wireless IP.
7. Spotwave Wireless requests that this data is maintained as confidential for a period of 5 years, as this is compatible with the anticipated commercial life-time of the product, and will therefore be sufficient to prevent competitive harm to the company.

8. A copy of the SpotWave Wireless standard non-disclosure agreement is provided for reference.
