

Operational Description

The C125S is designed to meet the mobility, performance, security, interoperability, management, reliability requirements of IEEE 802.11b high data rate standard. When installed, C125S can communicate with other IEEE 802.11b compatible products to create a wireless network in your office or home. C125S can be powered with 3.3 or 5VDC. And two dipole antennas used to receive RF signal. This equipment should be installed and operated with the minimum 15 cm between your body and the Antenna. The other instruction, please have a look at the users manual.