

Operational description

The Corinex intelligent powerline USB adapter is powerline communication device. The primary circuit is used for supplying the device and using coupling transformer with reinforced insulation as communication medium too.

For user is only necessary connect USB powerline device through USB connector and standard USB cable to PC and use it as standard network device.

Triple LED indication on front panel for powerline communication and double LED indication for USB communication gives information about performance of device.