

Simultaneously, when the input signal exceeds the dynamic range, the circuit's attenuator will automatically attenuate within the limit of the output level.

