

The image shows the internal components of a white Bosch device, possibly a power tool or diagnostic unit. A ruler is visible at the top and left edges for scale. A white label is placed on the left side of the device's interior, with the text "Label location" overlaid on it. The device's internal structure includes two large vertical slots, a central green printed circuit board (PCB) with four gold-plated pins, and various other electronic components and connectors. The label is positioned in the upper left quadrant of the device's interior.
