

The figure below represents a circuit board with an antenna, and one without. As one can see, there are no components located below/underneath the antenna.

