Your tablet has a built-in battery. The battery can only be replaced by the original manufacturer.

Before using your tablet for the first time, you need to charge the battery for a minimum of eight hours.

Warnings:

• Do not crush, puncture, short external contacts, or dispose of battery in fire or water.
• Do not expose to temperatures above 40°C (104°F).

To charge the battery:

1. Insert the USB connector on the Micro USB cable into your tablet's micro USB port.
2. Insert the other end of the USB cable into the USB power adapter.
3. Plug the USB power adapter into a power outlet to start charging the battery.

   When the battery is charging, the battery charging icon appears at the bottom right corner of the screen if your tablet is turned on.

   After the battery has been fully charged, the (full battery) icon appears at the bottom right corner of the screen if your tablet is turned on.

4. Caution: If you plan to store your tablet for an extended period, you need to charge the battery at least once a month. If the battery charge drains completely, the battery may be damaged.

   • Adjust the sleep timer.

   Notes:

Specific Absorption Rate (SAR) Certification Information

Your wireless mobile device is a radio transmitter and receiver. It is designed and manufactured not to exceed the exposure limits for Radio Frequency (RF) energy set by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) of the U. S. Government.

These FCC RF exposure limits are derived from the recommendations of two expert organizations: The National Council on Radiation Protection and Measurement (NCRP) and the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE). In both cases, the recommendations were developed by scientific and engineering experts drawn from industry, government, and academia after extensive reviews of the scientific literature related to the biological effects of RF energy.

The RF exposure limit set by the FCC for wireless mobile devices employs a unit of measurement known as the Specific Absorption Rate (SAR). The SAR is a measure of the rate of absorption of RF energy by the human body expressed in units of watts per kilogram W/kg). The FCC requires wireless devices to comply with a safety limit of 1.6 watts per kilogram (1.6 W/kg).

The FCC SAR limit incorporates a substantial margin of safety to give additional protection to the public and to account for any variations in measurements.

SAR tests are conducted using standard operating positions accepted by the FCC with the mobile device transmitting at its highest certified power level in all tested frequency bands. Although the SAR is determined at the highest certified power level, the actual SAR level of the mobile device while operating can be well below the maximum reported value. This is because the mobile device is designed to operate at multiple power levels so as to use only the power required to reach the network. In general, the closer you are to a wireless base station antenna, the lower the power output of the mobile device.

Before a new model mobile device is available for sale to the public, it must be tested and certified to the FCC that it does not exceed the SAR limit established by the FCC. Tests for each model mobile device are performed in positions and locations (e.g. near the body) as required by the FCC.

By typical operations, this mobile device has been tested and meets FCC SAR guidelines.Use of other accessories may not ensure compliance with FCC RF exposure guidelines. The FCC has granted an Equipment Authorization for this mobile device with all reported SAR levels evaluated as in compliance with the FCC RF exposure guidelines. This mobile device has a FCC ID number: A3LSCHI925 and the specific SAR levels for this mobile can be found at the following FCC website: http://www.fcc.gov/oet/ea/

The SAR information for this device can also be found on Samsung's website:

http://www.samsung.com/sar

SAR information on this and other model mobile devices can be accessed online on the FCC's website through http://transition.fcc.gov/oet/rfsafety/sar.html. To find information that pertains to a particular model mobile device, this site uses the mobile device FCC ID number, which is usually printed somewhere on the case of the mobile device.

Once you have the FCC ID number for a particular mobile device, follow the instructions on the website and it should provide values for typical or maximum SAR for a particular mobile device. Additional SAR information can also be obtained at http://www.fcc.gov/encyclopedia/specific-absorption-rate-sar-cellular-telephones.
