TCB:

Please note that justification is required for internal photos to be held confidential. Here is a list of conditions under which internal photos may be held confidential. Please note which one of these applies and provide a declaration/explanation of how the requirement is met:

- a. Internal photos of a consumer device may be held confidential when the circuit board is enclosed in epoxy or in a material that would destroy the circuit board if removed.
- b. Internal photos of a consumer device may be held confidential if the device is sealed and disassembly would destroy the product.
- c. Internal photos can also be held confidential if a non-consumer device is inaccessible to the general public, such as a device mounted on the top of a large tower (or in a fenced enclosure) that is only serviceable by the licensee or his designated technicians.

Applicant:

The EUT is built into a car. It is not visible to general public as mentioned in the confidentiality request letter. The same confidential procedure was used in the certification with FCC ID: YMY030152 in 2011.
