Reutech Radar Systems supplies the MSR ESPRIT product into a competitive market. The product was developed as a next generation with unique characteristics not currently available from competitors. Reutech Radar Systems has invested substantially in the development of this product and anticipates having a competitive advantage once the product is launched ("trade secret"). It is therefore of commercial importance that information related to this product is not made available for public inspection as this could compromise the competitive position of the product and directly impact the commercial viability of the investment. It is anticipated that not protecting the details of the design will result in financial hardship.

The items identified in the table above are not available publicly. Items supplied to a customer (e.g. user manual) are subject to a confidentiality agreement between the customer and Reutech Radar Systems restricting disclosure of proprietary information. Technical information is only provided to trained technicians that are either in the employ of Reutech Radar Systems or in the employ of distributors bound by contractual agreements including confidentiality restricting disclosure of proprietary information.

The product supplied is completely enclosed and is deployed in an access-restricted environment (open pit mines). Access to internal circuit boards or components is only available to professional designated technicians either in the employ of Reutech Radar Systems or in the employ of distributors bound by contractual agreements including confidentiality restricting disclosure of proprietary information.

Requested term for shortterm confidentiality: 180 days

Long-Term Confidentiality

Such documentation is only made available to support personnel in the employ of Reutech Radar Systems and to distributor support personnel where the distributor is bound contractually to Reutech Radar Systems preventing disclosure of proprietary information.
2. The MSR ESPRIT system is utilized for open-pit slope monitoring. The systems are supplied to and deployed within the mining operation. 3. Contractual agreements between Reutech Radar Systems and distributors include Terms and Conditions that amongst others specify confidentiality and non-disclosure.

An example clause contained within the contractual agreement between Reutech Radar Systems and a distributor is given below:
