*RE: Response to Additional Questions Regarding NCP Cable Landing License
Application, File No. SCL-LIC-20151104-00029*

Dear Ms. Dortch:

On November 24, 2015, International Bureau staff requested additional information from Microsoft Operations Pte Ltd (“MOPL”), Microsoft Infrastructure Group, LLC (“MIGL”), China Mobile International Limited, China Telecommunications Corporation, China United Network Communications Group Company Limited, Chunghwa Telecom Co., Ltd., and KT Corporation (together, the “Applicants”) related to the above-referenced cable landing license application.¹ The Applicants provide a response to those follow-up questions below.

1. Are each of the cable landing stations pre-existing, or are some planned?

Some of the cable landing stations have already been constructed, while others have yet to be built. The Applicants provide the construction status for each cable station below:

Station	Status
Chongming, China	Existing
Lingang, China	Under construction
Nanhui, China	Existing
Busan, Korea	Existing
Toucheng, Taiwan	Existing
Maruyama, Japan	Existing
Pacific City, Oregon	Planned

2. Has construction begun on the cable system?

No, construction has not yet begun for the NCP cable system.

3. Do each of the cable landing station owners both own and operate their cable landing stations?

Yes, with the exception of MIGL, each of the cable landing station owners set forth at page 10 of Attachment 1 to the application both owns and operates its respective cable landing station. MIGL will lease and control the cable landing station at Pacific City, Oregon.
