Attachment 1

1. Description of the Pro Forma Transfer of Control

Cable & Wireless Americas Systems, Inc. ("CWAS") holds a submarine cable landing license issued by the FCC (See SCL-LIC-20010122-00002) for the Apollo submarine cable system. Alcatel Submarine Networks Limited owns 45% of Apollo. The remaining 55% is owned directly by Apollo Submarine Cable Systems Limited (England) ("Apollo"). Apollo is ultimately wholly-owned and controlled, through a series of intermediary companies, by Cable & Wireless Worldwide plc ("CWW"). On March 31, 2011, CWW effectuated an internal reorganization that eliminated[1] Cable & Wireless Global Holding Limited (England) which was in the corporate chain between CWAS and CWW. Attached hereto are the before and after group corporate structures of CWW which illustrates the pro forma change. Under the FCC's rules, the reorganization is a pro forma transfer of control since the ultimate ownership of the CWW interest in CWAS did not change. CWAS is submitting this pro forma transfer of control application in light of the corporate changes described herein.

---

[1] Note that Cable & Wireless Global Holding Limited will not be liquidated or struck off rather the shareholding in the Global Network Limited sub-group will transfer from the ownership of Cable & Wireless Global Holding Limited to The Eastern Leasing Company Limited thereby becoming a sister subsidiary of CWGH, both having The Eastern Leasing Company Limited as its holding company.