

Request For Waiver

On July 2, 2009, Rockwell Collins, Inc. (“Rockwell Collins”) acquired DataPath, Inc. (“Datapath”) along with DataPath’s wholly owned subsidiary, SWE-DISH Satellite Systems AB (“SWE-DISH AB”) and SWE-DISH AB’s wholly owned subsidiary, SWE-DISH Satellite Systems, Inc. (“SWE-DISH”). At the time of that transaction, SWE-DISH applied for, and was granted, consent for the transfer of control from DataPath to Rockwell Collins. Subsequent to that transaction, DataPath changed its name to Rockwell Collins Satellite Communications Systems, Inc. (“RCSCS”) and SWE-DISH AB changed its name to Rockwell Collins Sweden AB. Rockwell Collins Sweden AB and SWE-DISH remained wholly owned subsidiaries of RCSCS.

On January 22, 2010, Rockwell Collins Sweden AB sold its shares of SWE-DISH to RCSCS. On January 25, 2010, SWE-DISH then merged into RCSCS, with RCSCS surviving. As a result of those transactions, the satellite earth station authorizations held by SWE-DISH were assigned to RCSCS.

Due to an oversight, SWE-DISH and RCSCS neglected to request consent from the Commission for this pro forma assignment before it was consummated. They therefore request a waiver of Section 25.119(a) of the Commission’s rules and respectfully request the FCC retroactively grant consent to the pro forma assignment of those earth stations from SWE-DISH to RCSCS. SWE-DISH and RCSCS respectfully submit that the transaction has had no adverse effect on the communications services associated with the earth station authorizations listed in this application, as the ultimate ownership and control of the authorizations has remained at all times with RCSCS.
